

Reading reaction reports

These are four forms I use for extensive reading reaction reports.

I ask students to use each one at least one. After that, they decide which they want to use.

Having different forms (a) provides variety and (b) works with different learning styles/intelligences.

The forms are:

1. summary/ reaction
2. Draw a picture. Artistic/kinesthetic/visual.
3. Your own questions. Analytical skills. Also encourages learners to preview the book.
4. The book and you. Intrapersonal.

Feel free to modify these in anyway you like to fit your program.

This file is in .pdf format so the font-based graphics, etc. come through
